

The “black english” (it feels a bit racist to say that) in the essay was an interesting choice, and as mentioned by the author, it was unique and unusual to see a formal paper written with such language. Other than that, I had a little trouble understanding the words here and there, since I’m not very familiar with this dialect